KEEP SWEET.

The days may be dark and weary.
Or they may be filled with heat.
Our busy feet may grow weary As on life's trail they beat.
However it be,
It seems to me
The proper thing is To just keep sweet!

John Noble, of Noble, was here Monday.

John H. Lovelace and H. F.

Michael Robinson, of Quicksand, was a caller at The News office Saturday. He is now conducting a successful mercantile business at the mouth of Quicksand Creek.

The Lexington & Eastern railway commenced running their Sunday train from Lexington to Jackson and return last Sunday.
This train will be run every Sunday during the heated season.

J. S. Trent, of Frozen Creek, and Miss Louellen Robinson, a daughter of Michael Robinson, of Quicksand, were united in marriage at the residence of the bride's father on last Thursday afternoon.
Rev. Stephen Carpenter officiating. They will make their home at Quicksand. Mr. Trent is a moral and industrious young man and is now clerking in Mr. Robinson's store. He has many friends in Breathitt who are pleased to hear of his success. The bride is very popular in that neighborhood and a lady of many virtues.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Mrs. Eliza Richie died at her home at St. Helens on March 28, and was buried the next day by the side of her son, Wm. Simms, who was killed several years ago while Sheriff of Lee county in attempting to make an arrest. She was 71 years of age and had been a member of the Methodist church about 50 years. Her funeral was conducted by Rev. J. H. Hieronymous. She was a sister to John H. Lovelace, of Frozen, and Mrs.
Perlina Williams, of Chicago, who are the only survivors of a family of ten.

CARD OF THANKS.

I take this method of thanking the many good people of St. Helens and Lee county for the kindness shown my sister, Mrs. Eliza Richie, during her last illness.

JOHN H. LOVELACE,
Frozen, Ky.

THE LAZY MAN'S PRAYER.

Now I get me up to shirk, I hope I will not have to work, If I should die before the night, Thank God, there'll be no work in sight.

The News Agrees With This.

We were asked this week by a delinquent subscriber why we kept on sending the paper after the subscription had expired, says the Harrodsburg Herald. Every weekly newspaper in a town of this size are forced to do this. Should we stop subscriptions when the time expires nine times out of ten the subscriber would give us a "call down" for insinuating that his credit was not good. Rather than to cast a reflection against the honesty of a subscriber to pay a small debt, it is next to a necessity for a home paper to continue sending the paper after the time has expired. It is not necessary for the city dailies or weeklies to follow this rule, as their subscribers live at a distance and are not personal friends as is the case with a majority of our subscribers.
Our subscribers should deem it an honor to know that we do not doubt their integrity and continue to send them the paper after their time has expired. Should any desire their paper discontinued they should notify us and remit to date. Then if the paper is not stopped, we guarantee that it doesn't cost them a cent.

Heartburn

You know what it is—few people are exempt from frequent
"spells" of this distressing complaint.
The appetite becomes impaired, while a severe gnawing or burning sensation experienced in the upper part of the abdomen.
Heartburn is one of the many ways in which the digestive organism expresses disapproval of ill-treatment—warns you to be careful.

Circuit court closed here Satur-

Commonwealth's Attorney Lewis left for London, where the Laurel 100 indictments during the time.

Dudley Hocker was indicted, charged with breaking in the store house of John Gilbert, on Buffalo, and plead guilty and was sent up for one year.

The trial of William Osborn, charged with the murder of deputy sheriff Walker D. Wilson, last November, resulted in a hung jury.
It will be remembered that at the time of the killing Osborn left this county and a reward of $400 was offered for his return and he was captured by the Sheriff of Menifee county. Osborn will be placed in the Richmond jail for

No Change of Time on the L. &

A. Railroad.

On account of the prevailing impression that a change of time would occur on the L. & A. R. R. about June 1st, I desire to announce there will be no change whatever in the present running of trains for the summer.

There will also be no regular scheduled Sunday service, as formerly, during the months of June, July, August and September.

It is the intention of the L. & A.
R. R. to run a number of Sunday excursions during these months to different points on our line, as well as to Cincinnati and Louisville, due notice of which will be given in hand bills and through these columns. For any further information, call on or address any

To Keep Bread Fresh.

In Swiss and German farmhouses, where the baking takes place once a fortnight or certainly at fairly long intervals, such a thing as unpleasantly stale bread is almost unknown. It is put away in a peculiar manner, which tends to preserve its freshness. Sprinkle flour freely into an empty flour sack, and into this pack the loaves, being careful to have the top crusts of two loaves touching. Where they have to lie bottom to bottom sprinkle flour between them. Tie up the sack and hang it up in an airy place—not against a wall, but so that it can swing. The day before the loaf is wanted take it out, brush off the flour and stand it in the cellar overnight. In this way bread remains edible for three or four weeks.

A Modest Ambition.

The Hon. Mr. Sweet was making friends with Johnny, his host's son.
"And how old are you?" he asked.
"I'm five," said Johnny.

"Ah! Quite a little man! And what are you going to be?" questioned Mr. Sweet, who has been a senator so many years that he now believes that he selected his own career in the cradle and that all infants do likewise.

"I'm going to be six," Johnny returned, with conviction.

Just Escaped.

An English newspaper has an item about a little Scotch boy who, while playing on the docks, fell into the water and was with great difficulty rescued by a bystander.

"You ought to be very glad I was near by," said his rescuer.

"I am," replied the boy. "And I'm so glad ye got me out. What a lickin' I was got from my nither if I'd been drowned!"

OIL AND GAS.

A Brief Sketch of the Formation, History and Production of Petroleum and Natural Gas.

METHODS OF PRODUCTION:

While petroleum has been produced for an immemorial period in China, Persia and many of the other countries of Europe and Asia, the methods used in the production, while interesting in an historical way, would be scarcely possible to treat with here, as the mode of production now in use in the United States is the familiar to all readers of the article and the one which will be given.

Most of the wells of early history were hand-dug and some of them ranged to 500 feet in depth.

The drilling tools; jars, casing, etc., used at the present day in well-drilling in the United States, were probably first invented by the Ruffner Bros., in West Virginia, in their efforts to supply the market with salt. After several unsuccessful attempts in getting through the rock, and finally, after eighteen months' work on the tools which finally overcame all difficulties, they succeeded in drilling, tubing and working the first rock-bored salt well in the United States.

Afterward, in 1831, a man named Morris improved the jars, and that improvement is now used when deep boring is done.

The salt wells were all the while being drilled to greater depths and most of the deeper ones contained more or less petroleum and gas, and was permitted to escape, the oil especially, being considered a great nuisance. Afterwards, however, the gas was utilized for boiling the salt water and the petroleum began to be in demand in workshops and factories.

The use of petroleum created a demand, and in 1859 Col. E. L.

Drake and his associates drilled a well especially in search of petroleum that was supposed to be stored in the sand rocks near Titusville, Pa., and upon the success of that well the development of the great oil industry hinged.

Other wells had been drilled in adequate troops appeared on the ground and set to the oil accumulated in tanks, barrels and boats in the Burning Springs district; the field was abandoned and never recovered from the effects of the conflagration. There were, however, two or three wells drilled in the Burning Springs district in 1861 which are still producing from one to two barrels daily since that time.

TRANSPORTATION:—In Burma and other Eastern countries petroleum was stored and transported in flasks and jars. In the United States it was for many years transported in barrels made tight for oil by being coated on the inside with a stiff solution of glue. The first petroleum from the Titusville, Pa., region was barreled and conveyed by wagon to the creek and there loaded into boats and barges and delivered to points from Oil Creek to Pittsburg.

Large quantities were hauled to railroads and there shipped to eastern and western destinations by rail and a good portion was carried to the Lakes by canal. When railroads reached the main valleys they provided tanks or cars, but this method was always accompapanied by a large percentage of loss by leakage, the tanks having been first made of wood, but this was overcome by the construction of iron tanks and a great deal of oil is still transported in this way.

The transportation by river was also improved by the construction of creek boats which carried the oil in tight compartments.

While these improved methods removed a part of the difficulties, there yet remained the obstacles that were encountered in conveying the petroleum produced a few miles away from the lines of transportation. This was accomplished for many years by teams and wagons, but the conditions of the roads made it a hardship and restricted the quantity of petroleum that could be carried to the main line of transportation. This condition of affairs caused the operators to seek a new source of relief, which was found by the construction of pipe-lines. This is the method by which most of the petroleum is transported at the present time in the United States.

The first successful pipe line was built in 1865 near Titusville, Pa.,

CHAPTER XX.

It was between twilight and candlelight, the gentle half-hour when the kind old sandman strolls up the stairs of houses where children are, when rustic lovers stroll with slow and quiet steps down country lanes and old bachelors are lonely and dream of the things that might have been. Through the silence of the evening dusk came the whistle of the clear boat that was to bear Tom Vanrevel through the first stage of his long journey to the front of war, and the sound fell cheerfully upon Miss Betty's ear as she stood leaning against the sundial among the lilac bushes. Her attitude was not one of reverie, yet she stood very still, as still that in the wan shimmer of the faded afternoon one might have passed her for a statue. She had been looking at the sundial for some time, and her arms, bare from the elbow, lay across the face of the dial with unheeded fingers clenching the corals; her head drooping languidly, but with tension, her eyes half closed, showing the lashes against a pale cheek; and thus motionless, leaning on the stone in the dusk, she might have been sorrow's self.

She did not move; there was not even a flicker of the eyelashes, when a step sounded on the gravel of the driveway, and Vanrevel came slowly from the house. He stopped at a little distance from her, but he found her. He was very thin, worn and old looking, and in the falling light might have been taken for a tall, gentle ghost, yet his shoulders were squared and he held himself as straight as he had the first time she had ever seen him.

"Mrs. Tanberry told me I should find you here," he said hesitatingly. "I have come to say good-by."

She did not turn toward him nor did more than her lips move as she answered, "Good-by," and her tone was neither kind nor cold, but held no meaning whatever, not even indifference.

There was an interval of silence. Then, without surprise, he walked sadly to the gate, passed, whistled about suddenly and returned with a quick, firm step.

"I will not go until I know that I do not misunderstand you," he said, "not even if there is only the slightest chance that I do. I want to say something to you if you will let me, though naturally I remember you once asked me never to speak to you again. It is only that I have thought you should that under a misconception or else I should still obey you, if you."

"What is it that you wish to say?" Her tone was unchanged.

"Only that I think the hardest time for you has passed, and that—"

"Do you?" she interrupted.

"Yes," he returned, "the saddest of your life. I think it has gone forever. And I think that what will come to you will be all you wish for. There will be a little time of waiting—"

"Waiting for what?"

He drew a step nearer, and his voice became very gentle. "Cummings and I reach our regiment tomorrow night, and there in the camp is a group of men on the way to the war, and they all go the more bravely because each one of them has you in his heart—not one but will be a better soldier because of you. I want you to believe that if all of them don't come back, yet the one whose safety you think of and fear for will return. For, you see, Crailley told me what you said to him when—when he met you here the last time. I have no way to know which of them you meant; but he will come back to you! I am sure of it, because I believe you are to be happy. Ah, you've had your allotment of pain!"

"After all, there is so little to regret. The town seems empty without its young men, yet you may rejoice, remembering how bravely they went and how gayly. They will sing half the way to Vera Cruz. You think it strange I should say there is so little to regret when I've just laid away my best friend. It was his own doctrine, and the selfish personal grief and sorrow grow less when I think of the gallant and he made, for it was he who went away most bravely and jauntily of all. Crailley was no failure unless I let what he taught me go to no effect. And he sure he would have told you what I tell you now, that all is well with all in the world."

"How?" she asked, with a quick intake of breath through closed teeth.

"I will do anything in the world to please you," he answered sorrowfully. "Do you mean that?"

She turned at last and faced him, but without lifting her eyes. "Why did you come to say good-by to me?"

"I don't understand."

"Think you do?" Her voice was cold and steady, but it was suddenly given to her perceiving that she was trembling head to heel.

"A scream of remorse broke from her."

"Ah, you came here to be cruel! I—"

"No," she said. "You said good-by to me once before. Did you come to see what you saw then?"

"He fell back in utter amazement, but she advanced upon him swiftly. "What is that?" she cried.

"The unfortunate young man could make no reply and remained unable to defend himself from her inexplicable attack."

"You have not forgotten," she went on impetuously. "It was in the crowd just before they gave you the flag. You saw—I know you saw—and it killed me with the shame of it! Now you come to me to look at the same thing again, and the boat waiting for you! Is it in revenge for that night at the Bureaus? Perhaps that sounds wild to you—I can't help that—but why should you try to make it harder for me?"

From the porch came a strong voice, "Vanrevel!"

"Good knows I haven't meant to," said Tom in bitter pain. "I don't understand. It's Cummings calling for me. I'll go at once. I'd hoped, stupidly enough, that you would tell me when it was you meant when you spoke to Crailley, so that I could help to make it surer that he'd come back to you. But I've only annoyed you. And you were here—away from the house—avoiding me and fearing that I—"

"Vanrevel!" shouted William. (Mrs. Tanberry had not told Lieutenant Cummings where to find Miss Betty.)

"Fearing? Yes?"

"Fearing that I might discover you?" He let his eyes rest on her loveliness once more, and as he saw that she still trembled he extended his hand toward her in a gesture of infinite gentleness, set his face carefully toward the house.

He had taken three strides when his heart stopped beating at an ineffable touch on his sleeve, for, with a sharp cry, she sprang to him, and then, once more, among the lilac bushes where he had caught the white kitten, his hand was seized and held between two small palms, and the eyes of Miss Betty Carewe looked into the very soul of him.

"No!" she cried. "No! Fearing with a sick heart that you might not come!" Her pale face, misty with sweetness, wavered before him in the dusk, and he lifted his shaking hand to his forehead. Her own went with it, and the touch of that hand, so sweetly brokenly,

"You mean that you—"

Made Happy for Life.

Great happiness came into the home of S. C. Blair, school superintendent at St. Albans, W. Va., when his little daughter was restored from the dread complaint he names. He says: "My little daughter had St. Vitus' Dance which yielded to no treatment, but grew steadily worse until as a last resort we tried Electric Bitters; and I rejoice to say, three bottles effected a complete cure." Quick, sure cure for nervous complaints, general debility, female weaknesses, impoverished blood and malaria. Guaranteed by Jackson Drug Co. Price 50c.

A Year of Blood.

The year 1883 will long be remembered in the time of F. N. Tackett, of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tackett's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me to death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result, after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has passed permanently cured. Guaranteed to cure lungs, coughs and colds at Jackson Drug Co. Price 50c and $1.00. Try bottle free."

Washing Woolens.

To wash blankets so they will retain their first freshness use soft water and plenty of it. Make a strong suds of soap, and in it immerse the blankets, previously shaken free of dust and lint. Never rub the soap directly on the articles. Wash with the hands. Never rub on a board. Rinse through several waters, having each hotter than the one that precedes it. This is the one great secret of the process. The heat expands the wool and keeps it soft. Shake out well, pulling the edges straight, and dry quickly. Wash all woolsens the same way.

RENT PAYS FOR LAND.

Fertile Sections of the Southwest Where Land Sells for $15 and Rents for $5 per Acre.

One of the most remarkable things about Eastern Arkansas and Northern Louisiana is the fact that cleared land rents for $5 per acre cash, and can be bought for $7.50 to $15 per acre. It costs from $8 to $10 per acre to clear it. Other improvements necessary are slight and inexpensive. The soil is rich alluvial or made. It produces a bale of cotton per acre, worth $45 to $60. This accounts for its high rental value. Other crops, such as corn, small grains, grasses, vegetables and fruits thrive well.

Alfalfa yields 4 to 6 cuttings, a ton to the cutting, and brings $10 to $16 per ton.

In other sections of these states and in Texas as well, the rolling orchard land is especially adapted to stock raising and fruit growing. Land is very cheap, $5 to $10 per acre; improved farms $10, $15 to $25 per acre.

The new White River country offers many opportunities for settlers. High, rolling, fine water—land is naturally adapted to stock and fruit raising. Can be bought as low as $5 per acre.

See this great country for yourself and pick out a location. Descriptive literature, with free on request.
